The Butler Always Knows Best!

Although the Finches were extremely rich, they were very relaxed. The only way people knew that they were rich was because of their beautiful house and their long-serving butler. 'James was here when we bought the house', Lord Finch always said. 'We can't live without him now. He always knows best!'

One day, Lord and Lady Finch were having a party at their country house. They invited their neighbours, Ambassador Raynor and his wife Lucille, for dinner. First, everyone met in the entrance hall. Then, James served everyone a glass of champagne in the living room. There, Lucille and Lady Finch stopped at the window to enjoy the view of the garden. Afterwards, they moved to the dining room to sit down for dinner.

Suddenly, halfway through the meal, the ambassador's wife cried, 'Oh dear! Something terrible has happened. I've lost my necklace!' 'Don't worry. We'll find it!' said Lord Finch. 'James can fix anything. James?' Lord Finch called to the butler. James entered the dining room and turned to Lucille. 'What kind of necklace is it?' he asked. 'Oh a very special one', she said. 'It was given to my grandmother by Queen Victoria.' After that, James quietly walked out of the room.

Lucille was terribly disappointed with James; but five minutes later, he returned with the necklace. The people in the room reacted with surprise. He then explained how he did it. 'It was actually quite easy, my lord', he said calmly. 'Madam Raynor mentioned that the necklace was received from Queen Victoria. So, I realised that it was very old. Old necklaces can break very easily. It was easy to guess that the necklace fell off somewhere. I only had to find out where it happened. So, I simply followed her steps for the day.'

'See?' cried Lord Finch, 'I told you! The butler always knows best!'
